OPPIOR OF THE DAILY APPRAL MEMPHIS, July 27, 1870. Among the additions to the Govern ment Baroaus and Departments, developed since the war, there is not one nat is more mischievous or usaless than that which proposes to supervise the agricultural affairs of the United States. It neuros the influence of our leading agricultural societies, interferes with their specific work, and blunders so eggregiously in mere statistics as to mislead and lean over to the side of the gamblers of New York, who, utterly without soul, speculate upon its baseless figures, always, of course, to the disadvantage of the producer. If anything were needed to prove the correctness of our position, to prove the correctness of our position, the last report of this institution is sufficient.
